

Conducting human subjects research involving children or teens?

If you are conducting or plan to conduct research involving children and/or teens as participants in research, this workshop is for you! Staff from the UO's Research Compliance Services will review ethical considerations, Institutional Review Board (IRB) requirements, and best practices. Come to ask questions about your individual research projects and hear tips from experienced researchers.

Date: April 12, 2017

Time: 12pm – 1:30pm

Location: Hedco 230T

Register online through Human Resources' Making Tracks:

https://odt.uoregon.edu/registration/course_view.php?crse_id=737

Questions? Contact: Research Compliance Services

researchcompliance@uoregon.edu

541-346-2510

Everyone at the UO conducting research with human subjects is required to obtain approval from the UO's IRB (Institutional Review Board). The RCS staff work with researchers and the IRB to facilitate this process. More information about the IRB is available at rcs.uoregon.edu